1688. In the eighteenth & nineteenth centuries Lancaster became a thriving port, trading cotton, sugar, rum & other goods to every corner of the world via the River Lune, just a few minutes' walk from The Merchants. Lancaster quay & Castle Hill at the time would have been bustling with tradesmen, sailors & local customs officers.

The main building above the pub, now occupied by Harrison Pitt Architects, was built in the mid eighteenth century using local S&Stone. The site was occupied by the offices of the Pusey Hall Estate at the turn of the nineteenth century & the cellar roof was once supported by the 'ribs' of The Pusey Hall, a trading ship built in Lancaster in 1808. Later additions to the main building include two 19th century loading slots, projecting corbels & a steel crane – confirming its primary use as a warehouse.

The name 'Richard Hinde' can just be seen painted on the gable facing Market Street. Richard Hinde & Co traded as a wine & spirit merchant, first listed in local directories in 1851. Richard Hinde & his family occupied the premises for almost 100 years, & the barrel-vaulted cellars beneath the main warehouse would have been the perfect place to store their wine, spirits & porters. The thick stone walls maintain a steady, cool temperature, & in the depths of the cellars the bottles would remain quietly undisturbed in the dark.

Ironically, on the site of the Merchants beer garden once stood the Commercial Temperance Hotel, run by Mrs. Jane Scott & her daughters from 1889 to 1913. Lancashire was the hub of the Temperance movement in the UK, a group that encouraged moderation if not abstinence from alcohol. Temperance hotels were commonplace in many Lancashire towns, offering a place of refuge for teetotal travellers.

In 1956 the warehouse had a new use as the premises for the Lancaster Rubber Company, whose sign can still be seen on the front of the building. By 1970, many of the buildings on Castle Hill had been registered as grade II listed buildings, preserving them as part of Lancaster's rich heritage.

Until the cellars were 'rediscovered' in the 1980s, the public knew nothing of what lay beneath the old warehouse. Carefully preserved, the main room & its three stone archways had hardly changed in over 300 years. A stone wall blocked what is now our doorway; once this was taken down the cellars were explored. Work soon began to turn the space into a public house, & in 1984 Merchants 1688 was born.
